

Robert Murray Davis taught at American, Canadian, and Hungarian universities and has lectured on modern American and English literature in ten European countries. Since retiring from teaching in 2000, he has traveled extensively in Central Europe and continues to write about modern English fiction, the American West, and contemporary Central European writers. His book on Central European writing since the fall of Communism entitled, After the Deluge, Us: Central European Writing after Communism is in press.

Books: Zgodbe iz Amerike / Stories from America, edited, with an introduction. Trans. Dušanka Zabukovec (Ljubljana: Sodobnost International, 2006)

Live White Male and Other Poems, (Guilderland, NY: Texture Press, 2006)

<http://beyondutopia.net/texture/live-white-male-2006-03-03.pdf>

The Ornamental Hermit: People and Places of the New West, essays (Texas Tech University Press, 2004)

Mid Life Mojo: A Guide for the Newly Single Male, nonfiction (Oak Tree Books, 2003)

A Lower-Middle-Class Education, nonfiction (University of Oklahoma Press, 1996)

Midlands: A Family Album, creative nonfiction (University of Georgia Press, 1992)

Outside the Lines, poetry (Cow Hill Press, 1990).